Treible Baby First Reported Born In '60

TERRY WILLIAM TREIBLE, who checked in at 5:29 a.m. Saturday, is the first baby of 1960 born at Monroe County General Hospital.

He is the son of Mr. and Mrs. LeRoy George Treible of 548 Main St., Stroudsburg. His mother is the former Donna Marie Notestine.

Pending reports of other births in homes or other institutions, the Treible youngster appears to be the recipient of gifts offered by merchants for the first youngster born in the twin boroughs in a yearly contest sponsored by The Daily Record.

Terry William is the second child born to the Treibles. He has a sister, Brenda Lee, 11 months old. The children's father is a construction worker.

Nixon Expected To Take Hand In Writing Platform

WASHINGTON (AP)—Vice President Richard M. Nixon may take a hand in Republican platform writing to aim a general election appeal at the independent voters.

If he remains unopposed for the GOP presidential nomination, Nixon will exercise the privilege—usually reserved to presidents running for re-election—of dictating the general principles on which the party will campaign next fall.

For Nixon this will provide an opportunity to bid for the support of independent voters. Their backing is regarded as necessary if the nationally outnumbered Republicans are to win the presidential contest.

To Counter Charges

In fashioning the general outline of the platform to be produced at the Chicago convention in July, Nixon can be expected to try to counter Democratic charges that he was favored by "Old Guard" standpat Republicans who drove New York Gov. Nelson A. Rockefeller out of contention for the presidential nomination.

Because the Democratic convention meets first, Nixon will have a chance to study that party's platform and calculate its nominee's weaknesses before approving the final draft of the GOP campaign statement.

There is general expectation that the Republican platform drafters will be lavish in their praise of the Eisenhower administration. National Chairman Thurston B. Morton already has said that "peace and prosperity" will be the principal GOP theme.

In the months before the convention Nixon naturally will tie himself as closely as possible to President Eisenhower's peace efforts. Nixon can only hope that this strategy doesn't turn sour at the mid-May Summit conference.

Balanced Defense

Nixon also will be obligated to support Eisenhower's concept of balanced defense forces while the Democrats are pounding away on the theme that a dangerous missile gap is developing and that the Soviets are pulling away in space.

Despite some signs that he is not entirely happy with the idea, Nixon will be identified with the flexible price support farm program of Secretary of Agriculture Ezra Taft Benson. Unless there is some improvement in crop prices, however, Benson himself is not likely to be asked to take any extensive part in the campaign.

While Nixon may be limited in altering the Republican image in those areas, there will be opportunities for him to branch out in other directions in the platform.

Associates think he will want a strongly worded plank on civil rights. What Congress does in this field will have a direct effect on the final wording of this part of the platform.

Kennedy Announces Candidacy

WASHINGTON (AP)—Sen. John F. Kennedy of Massachusetts hinted broadly Sunday that if Sen. Hubert H. Humphrey can beat him in Democratic presidential primaries, he will support the Minnesota for the nomination.

Kennedy announced his candidacy for his party's nomination Saturday and Humphrey did the same last Wednesday.

Sen. Wayne Morse (D-Ore.) said Dec. 22 he would enter his state's presidential primary.

Appearing on a TV program NBC "Meet the press," Kennedy struck at those who may seek the nomination but do so without entering primaries.

Envisions Victory

He said he expects to meet Humphrey in two or more primaries and if Humphrey wins "I should give him very favorable consideration" as the head of the ticket.

Kennedy added he has no feeling that Humphrey would win in the primary fights.

Despite his endorsement of the primaries as the logical testing grounds of men and ideas, Kennedy refused to be drawn into any definite statements on what primaries he will enter other than the one in New Hampshire. He said he would make his further plans known within four weeks.

While Kennedy, 42, would make no definite commitments he indicated he has ruled out no primaries, including those in California and Ohio where the respective governors, Edmund Brown and Michael V. DeSalle, are expected to run as Democratic favorite sons.

Will Reveal Finances

Asked if he would be prepared to make a disclosure of his financial position, along the lines of those made by candidates in the 1956 presidential campaign, Kennedy said he would do so if it seemed called for.

He said he owns no stocks or bonds and has no connection with any firm doing business with the government. He added that he can finance his own campaign so he must seek contributions the same as anyone else.

Won't Accept V. P.

Kennedy made it very clear he meant it Saturday when he said he would not accept a vice presidential nomination.

Asked whether he would take such a nomination if drafted he said he would not and expressed his conviction that the vice presidential nominee does not contribute much to the vote—getting power of a ticket. To support this, he cited instances where vice-presidential candidates failed to carry their home states.

Agreement Near In Eight-Month Steel Dispute

WASHINGTON (AP)—An agreement was reported imminent Sunday night in the eight-month steel labor dispute.

Secretary of Labor James P. Mitchell was closeted with top negotiators for the industry and the United Steelworkers Union.

They met practically all day, recessed for dinner and resumed talks in what was described as a crucial session shortly after 10 p.m. in a downtown office building.

A number of sources said the negotiations were rapidly nearing the agreement stage.

Iron Age, national metal working weekly, said in New York that a 30-month agreement costing the industry 41 cents an hour was indicated.

For the past several weeks, Mitchell has been meeting frequently with both sides seeking a peace pact ahead of a scheduled Jan. 11-13 ballot to be conducted by the National Labor Relations Board among the half million workers on the companies' "last offer."

The reported 41-cent settlement terms would represent considerably more than the 30 cents over a 36-month period that the industry has been offering since mid-November.

There has been a threat of a renewed steel strike on Jan. 26 when the present 80-day Taft-Hartley law injunction runs out. The injunction ended a record 116-day strike in early November.

Tom Campbell, editor in chief of Iron Age, said in a news release: "41-Cent Pact"

"Secret meetings started two weeks ago have resulted in arriving at a package which will cost the steel industry 41 cents an hour over a 30-month period. This includes a four-cent-an-hour cost of living hike under the old contract—and which is under court advisement."

Campbell continued: "This tentative settlement, unless it is torpedoed at the last minute is about 3½ cents an hour per year more than the industry's last offer."

Campbell said "major credit for the settlement goes to Vice President Richard M. Nixon and Labor Secretary James P. Mitchell."

Involuntary Agreement
"It is difficult to call the current package being put in final shape a voluntary agreement. It must be called an involuntary agreement that was strongly recommended by the government," Campbell added.

Campbell said the 11 presidents of the steel firms okayed the framework of the agreement last week in New York.

In Washington, a spokesman for Mitchell said the secretary was meeting with representatives of both sides trying to work out a settlement—as he has been doing all through the holidays.

"Just how close they are to a settlement and what the figures are I can't say," the spokesman added.

Traffic Toll Over Holiday Surges Toward New Mark

By The Associated Press

THE NEW Year's holiday weekend drew near a tragic close Sunday night with a bloody traffic death toll surging toward a probable new record.

Traffic fatalities passed pre-holiday estimates long before the 78-hour period ended and then rose toward the 364 deaths which set a record for a three-day New Year period in 1956-57.

The toll-fed by multi-fatal accidents in which as many as nine persons died—also endangered the all-time toll for the holiday—409 in the four-day period in 1956-57. However, a spokesman for the National Safety Council said the final death figures had a good chance to fall short of that record.

The council in a pre-holiday estimate had figured that 320 persons could die in the period running from 6 p.m. local time

Thursday to midnight Sunday. The prediction was far too low.

Multi-Fatal Crashes
"The very enormity of the toll is more effective warning than anything we could say," said a Council spokesman. "We are almost bound to pass the previous three-day New Year's record."

Shattering, multi-fatal crashes spurred the pace. Five women and two men were killed in a skidding auto crash Sunday near Saginaw, Mich. Nine were killed Saturday when a station wagon and auto collided in Florida. Four members of a family died Saturday when their car collided with a bus in Indiana. A train thundered into a stalled car near Casey, Ill., Sunday, killing three.

Below Christmas Record
Although the toll was of record proportions, it still was under the 493 fatalities reported in last week's three-day Christmas holiday. Traffic generally is lighter and travel distances shorter over New Year's.

Last year 377 persons died in traffic accidents over a four-day New Year's weekend.

Ex-Cons Kill
Four In Family
LAS VEGAS, Nev. (AP)—An ex-convict said Sunday he and a companion shot four members of the prominent Herbert W. Clutter family to death, one by one, in their home near Garden City, Kan., last Nov. 15.

Detective Lt. D. J. Handlon said the statement was made by Richard Eugene Hickock, 28, of Edgerton, Kan., and that Hickock implicated Perry Edward Smith, 31, of Las Vegas. Smith hasn't said anything.

Kansas Bureau of Investigation agents quoted Hickock as saying he and Smith invaded the Clutter home intending to rob a safe. They didn't find a safe, so they tied up the four Clutters and shot them, one at a time, Hickock told the officers.

Red Blinker, Flares Guide Flier To Port

STROUDSBURG and East Stroudsburg police, assisted by a taxicab operator and employees of Hamlen Flying Service, Saturday night brought a lost flier to a safe landing at the Hamlen Airport, East Stroudsburg RD 2.

The drama, staged while it was drizzling rain, started about 8:20 p.m. when Stroudsburg Patrolmen Russell Decker and Richard Wolbert noticed the plane circling as they patrolled in the borough squad car near Ninth and Phillips Sts.

Focus Spotlight
Decker said to Wolbert, "He looks like he's lost." They then drove to the top of the hill on Phillips St., turned on the red blinker on the squad car and focused their spotlight on the plane.

The pilot of the plane, Gerald W. Francis, 28, of 218 Philadelphia Ave., Takoma Park, Md., got the message. He continued to circle, blinking his running lights in acknowledgment.

The two policemen then drove out N. Fifth St. to Stokes Mill Road, then to Eagle Valley Corners and, up Route 209 to the airport with the plane following.

Meanwhile, East Stroudsburg police, alerted by the Stroudsburg-East Stroudsburg Control Center, were also enroute to the field.

Control Center Helps
At the same time, Jack Wyckoff, operating the control center, was attempting to reach personnel of the airfield.

About the same time, Al Hertz, operator of Pocono Cab Co., called the control center to report that he had noticed the plane and that it appeared to be lost.

Wyckoff explained the situation and Hertz volunteered to assist him in making the calls.

Wyckoff finally reached Donald London of East Stroudsburg's Franklin Hills section, an instructor at the field and a qualified commercial pilot. London and a friend, Stanley Fennner, who was visiting him, left for the field.

Both police cars had reached the airport and patrolmen were busy placing flares along the runway. E. Roy Hamlen, father of Hal Hamlen, operator of the field, appeared and began bringing out lights.

With these and the lights from the police cars and other vehicles, the plane managed to land on his third "pass" at the field.

Hargrove Admits He Killed Clark

FAIRFAXVILLE, Ohio (AP)—Floyd E. Hargrove, who was cleared once in a lie-detector test in the Christmas Eve sniper slaying of Charles R. Clark, 35, will be arraigned Monday in Municipal Court on a charge of first-degree murder.

Authorities still have not found the weapon they say Hargrove told them he used to kill Clark, 35, a successful engineer, Boy Scout leader and Sunday school superintendent.

Hargrove and Clark's wife, Lois, 30, a beautiful brunette, have admitted carrying on an eight-month love affair.

Rifle Into Lake
After Hargrove again admitted the slaying Saturday, authorities said, there still were some details missing in his story.

When he first admitted the slaying, he told officials he had hurled the rifle into Lake Erie. An all-day search by skin divers failed to turn up the weapon.

Saturday, he again led investigators on what they called a wild goose chase. The 35-year-old truck driver suggested three or four places where the rifle might be found, said Sheriff William B. Evans. The gun was not recovered.

Hargrove led officers to a telephone pole in which he said he had fired a test bullet after buying the used .22-caliber rifle Dec. 23. Tests showed this bullet was fired from the same gun that fired a bullet into Clark's temple as he stood in the kitchen of his Mentor home, Evans said.

Hargrove was arrested first a few hours after Clark was killed. He admitted the slaying, authorities said, but there were conflicting details.

Bought Gun
When a lie detector was used to check his story, authorities decided Hargrove had lied in confessing the slaying. He recanted and was set free.

New Year's Day, a man whose identity has not been revealed, informed Mentor Police Chief Frank D. Hathy that Hargrove had bought a gun in Chardon the day before the shooting.

Saturday, after being returned from Toledo, where he was visiting his mother, Hargrove again admitted the shooting, Evans said. However, Hargrove still is unable to account for a 25-minute period at the time of the shooting.

Why did the lie detector break down in this case? Evans would say only that Hargrove was "emotionally upset" at the time he took the test. Detective Sgt. Ralph J. Schaar of Shaker Heights, who gave Hargrove the test, said the machine would not detect psychopathic liars.

A father of five who was divorced two years ago, Hargrove told authorities he shot Clark because he wanted to marry Clark's wife, Mrs. Clark, who also took a lie-detector test, was not implicated in the slaying in any way, authorities said.

Children's Agency Offers 6 Services

By Mrs. William P. Wells
THE CHILDREN'S AID SOCIETY offers to the citizens of Monroe County six services to meet the individual needs of families with problems.

Foremost in helping is the professional social worker, trained in the understanding of human behavior, to diagnose each family's individual problems and to prescribe which service can best help to solve its problems.

The following is another in a series of articles reviewing the history and work of the Children's Aid Society of Monroe County. This article, written by Mrs. William P. Wells, vice-president and chairman of the case committee, describes three of the six services offered by the society.

much as a physician diagnoses the individual's basic illness and offers appropriate medicines.

The ultimate object is to help people help themselves. These services are offered to every individual in Monroe County regardless of finances, race or religion.

When disaster arises within a home because of emotional, physical, or mental difficulties, and the family must be separated, the most familiar of the society's services, foster care, is recommended. Foster care, ideally, is temporary, for with skilled help it is hoped that the problems can be solved, thus reuniting the family and making them independent.

Children from infancy to 18 years are welcomed into carefully selected foster homes when, for some reason, they cannot live with their own parents. While in foster homes, the society is responsible for the child's living expenses, providing board, clothing, medical and dental care.

Children who must be separated from their parents are always in need of help with questions they have such as "Why am I in a foster home?" or "What are my parents really like?" Unfortunately, for the child to discover and understand the answers to these questions is very hard and frequently unpleasant. Here the caseworker offers the most help.

Achieve Results
A year and a half ago there were 54 children in foster homes. Now there are 39. This gratifying decrease indicates that counseling with the children's parents toward the solution of their own problems does, in fact, reunite families and thus prevent dependency.

Institutional care is offered to a few special children whose lives have been so troubled that they can best be helped through group living. Unlike foster home care, which costs approximately $2.30 a day, group living costs approximately $7 a day.

The cost is high because of the increased use of social workers, psychologists and psychiatrists. The institutions most frequently used are Friendship House in Scranton and Easton Children's Home. As in foster care the society aims toward returning these children to their own families.

The third service offered is

Bishop Sees Gospel Going Beyond Earth

BALTIMORE (AP)—A Methodist leader asked Sunday night whether his church is making ready to carry the Gospel to inhabitants of other planets.

"Surely," said Bishop G. Bromley Oxnam of Washington, "God the Father Almighty did not devote all of his creative power to an unpopulated universe and did not place the climax of creation, which we believe is the human being, solely upon the earth."

Bishop Oxnam delivered the concluding address at a week-long conference celebrating the 175th anniversary of Methodism in the United States.

Culture Of Others

"Before another 175 years have passed," he said in the address prepared for the final ceremony, "we will have conquered space and come to know the thinking, the culture, the dreams, the problems, the limitations of the people who populate the great planets of the universe."

Suggesting God created life on planets other than earth, he asked:

"Is Methodism ready for the intellectual stretching necessary to re-examine its missionary program and to ask, 'Must the old command be revised to read, 'Go ye into the universe and preach the Gospel to every creature'?"

Method Of Revelation
Did the Eternal reveal himself to them? If so, how? Could He have sent His Son to each one of the planets? Were there other methods of revelation?

"How is the Eternal known in Mars, in Venus, in Jupiter? Was the whole terrible enactment that we call 'Calvary' requisite for other human beings to learn the meaning of 'love so amazing, so divine,' that it does demand 'soul, life and all'?"

159 Arrested For Gambling

BOSTON (AP)—Police staged a raid on a supposedly unoccupied building in the South End Sunday and seized 159 persons in an after-hours drinking and gambling spot.

Liquor, cash, knives, a pistol and gaming devices were confiscated. Police Capt. James V. Crowley described the raid as one of the biggest since prohibition days.

Actions Voided
In a series of communications the army said all acts of Laos' one-chamber National Assembly after Dec. 25 are null and void.

A political-military group, the Committee for Defense of National Interests, brought down the mod-group objected to the contention of Phou and the Assembly that their mandate had been extended beyond Dec. 25 to elections scheduled for April 3.

This affiliation makes available to the people of Monroe County the professional services of pediatricians, psychologists, lawyers, and social workers. Families are asked to share in the cost of services, but the fee is based upon family income and well worth the protection, confidence and other advantages which tend to make the adoption as successful and sound as is humanly possible.

Dear Abby

Pros, Cons Re Homework

Dear Abby: Re "Mother of Three" who complained because her children were over-loaded with homework.

NO NAME PLEASE
(We have to eat)
Dear Abby: I am with Mother of Three all the way. I have four children in school and their teachers give them homework like there's no tomorrow. Each teacher thinks his (or her) subject is the only one the student is carrying.

If a child carries five subjects and spends one hour on each — that's five hours of homework.
I have a solution. Why don't the teachers get together and decide which one will give the homework for that night? If they cooperated and gave each student only two subjects every night, the work wouldn't kill the kids and the teachers would be much happier, too.

MRS. C. G. F.
Dear Abby: It is obvious from your reply to "Mother of Three" that you don't have any children in high school. Have you?

CURIOUS
Dear Curious: I have. A freshman son and a senior daughter.

Dear Abby: I am an American and have traveled all over the world. When I saw the letter from Mother of Three, my blood boiled. Our American children don't know what work is. They have been spoiled and pampered until it is disgusting. No wonder some of our high school students can't spell or write.

Children in other nations who are fortunate enough to get an education, work in school from 8:00 a.m. until 5:30 p.m. When they get home they put in at least another three hours. And I never yet heard one of those children (or their parents) complain.

"ALL AMERICAN"
Dear Abby: After reading the letter from Mother of Three, as a father of six, I would like to put in my two cents. Three of my children have finished their education.

Then my husband suggested that the mother investigate and find out how much actual study time her daughter was putting in at home. The mother reported that she discovered her daughter was sketching, writing personal letters, talking on the phone and snacking about half the time. That's the last time that mother ever complained.

Confiscation Of Machines Is Ordered

LANSDOWN, Pa. (AP)—Multiple-coin pinball machines still in operation will be confiscated by state police, and the proprietors of establishments where the machines are found will be arrested.

Col. Frank J. McCartney, commissioner of state police, said Saturday he has issued an order to this effect. The state Supreme Court has ruled the machines are illegal gambling devices.

State Atty. Gen. Anne X. Alpern ordered them seized beginning New Year's Day. McCartney said a spot check two weeks ago indicated most machines have either been converted or removed.

He said his order does not include multiple-coin machines converted to single-coin operation. With multiple-coin machines, the chances of winning increase with the addition of extra coins.

A federal court has issued a temporary injunction barring the gle-coins machines until after a state from seizing converted sin-hearing March 7.

Auto Strikes House At Foot Of Bridge

ELWOOD E. LANDON, 27, Blaine St., East Bangor, was charged with reckless driving after his car struck the home of Theodore Williams, 200 Main St., Stroudsburg, at 3:03 a.m. Saturday. No one was hurt.

Landon told borough police he became confused by the borough's new traffic system while traveling south on the interborough bridge.

He missed the turn into McConnell St. as he left the bridge and his car crossed an island separating the approaches, knocked down a stop sign and hit the corner of the Williams property.

Police said damage to the back porch and kitchen was extensive and that kitchen cabinets were knocked from the wall. The loss was placed at $1,500 by a contractor. Damage to the car was reported heavy.

Firm Checks 1,155 County Businesses

THIS week business concerns all over the United States will receive requests from Dun & Bradstreet for their annual financial statement.

This year over three million businesses will receive these requests with 1,155 going to Monroe County concerns. Some 368 are mailed to firms in Stroudsburg and 247 in East Stroudsburg.

The Monroe County section of the current issue of the Dun & Bradstreet Reference Book contains listings of 1,155 local businesses, comprised of manufacturers, retailers and wholesalers.

Each day the agency as a whole checks into 6,000 changes in the business world, resulting from discontinuances, new businesses and changes in financial status.

Better than 95 percent of all commercial transactions in the United States are made on credit terms with the buyer and seller brought together by means of credit information.

When the owner of a business or his accountant returns his financial statement to Dun & Bradstreet, he has taken the first step in establishing his responsibility as a seeker of credit. The statement becomes part of a credit report on his business. On the basis of the information in the report, a rating is assigned and the business is listed in the Dun & Bradstreet Reference Book.

New County Officers To Take Oath

THREE Republicans and a host of Democrats will be sworn into Monroe County offices by Judge Fred W. Davis at 9:30 a.m. today in the courthouse.

Among the Republicans will be Mrs. Jeannette F. Batory of Stroudsburg, first woman ever elected to county office here. She will take the oath as register and recorder.

In the only upset of a Democratic-dominated general election last November, Mrs. Batory ousted Floyd Butz, Democratic incumbent, who was seeking a fourth term as register and recorder.

New Faces

The other Republicans who will take the oath today are Stanley Rader, minority party member of the board of county commissioners, and Mrs. Mary Emma Teeter Garcia, who will hold the same post on the county board of auditors.

New faces will be seen among the Democrats who are sworn in. They will include Walter D. Heckman and Harry T. Hamblin, associate judges; James R. Marsh, district attorney, and James V. Cadue, board of auditors.

Among the more familiar faces will be John R. Lesoine and Willard L. Quick, re-elected county commissioners; Jacob F. Altomose, renamed sheriff; N. Henry Fenner, re-elected clerk of courts and prothonotary, and Mahlon Besecker, auditor.

Mrs. Batory To Retain R-R Staff

MRS. JEANNETTE F. Batory, who assumes office as Monroe County register and recorder today, announced last night that there will be no changes in the staff of the office.

Miss Kathryn Bush, of Stroudsburg will remain as deputy register and recorder. Mrs. Mary Cramer and Miss Sandra Mader will continue to serve as clerks.

Mrs. Batory was elected to the post last November, defeating Floyd Butz, the Democratic incumbent.

Steel Voting Nears

A week from today, a half million members of the United Steelworkers of America will vote on whether to accept the steel industry's "final offer" for a new labor contract.

Union President David McDonald said a sampling of members indicates about 95 percent of them will reject the offer. Industry sources, while not optimistic, nevertheless feel the figure is far too high.

Regardless of the outcome, the unusual election is significant if merely for the reason that only 500,000 people—or less than three-tenths of one percent of the nation's population—will decide whether there is to be some more of the steel strike affecting all 185,000,000 inhabitants in one way or another.

The secret vote is required under provisions of the Taft-Hartley Law, which was invoked when the steel strike reached record proportions and became a threat to the nation's security.

While the vote, theoretically, is a referendum on the industry offer, actually, because of the propaganda battle between industry and the steelworker leaders, the steelworkers may feel they are voting "for" or "against" their union.

It is almost as though Roger Blough of U.S. Steel were opposing McDonald, incumbent, for the presidency of the steelworkers union, and the result is likely to be about the same.

In such a distorted atmosphere, it is unlikely that the government-monitored balloting will contribute toward settlement of the stalemated dispute. The best either side can win by the voting is a propaganda score because the results are not binding in any way.

Balloting there must be, because the law says so. But there must also be some serious give-and-take negotiations, because common sense says that's the only way a real settlement can be achieved.

The only correct settlement is one which takes into account the best interests of the entire population, not just the three-tenths of one percent who belong to the union.

Opinions Of Other Editors

Toughness Of Our Economy

Powerfully at work on the American economy during the last decade have been factors hostile to economic expansion.

One is deficit financing of government, making it a competitor for the attraction of capital in the money market. Federal debt increased some $43 billion, about 17%, in the decade.

Another is taxation that theoretically so burdens private capital as to discourage incentive. Annual federal revenues are some $30 billion, or 60%, higher than when the decade began.

A third is inflation, robbing the investor of the full fruit of his outlays for new plant and equipment. The continuing decline in the purchasing power of the dollar has brought it down to about 85% of the 1947-49 level.

Yet the economy is scarcely in ruins as it crosses the threshold of the 1960's. Gross national product—the standard measure of economic volume—has grown 65% during the 1950's, and is expected to jump 10% more in the new year.

Even in "constant" dollars (corrected for inflation), the rise has been 36%. There are 9 million more jobs, and average weekly wages are up 11% even with the inflation adjustment.

This is not to whitewash these adverse factors as being of no consequence. They do have their dragging effect, and ought to be minimized. But the experience in spite of them does hearteningly show how much resiliency and toughness the economy has. Even this much punishment hasn't stalled it.

The Pennsylvania Story

Jackrabbit Session

By Mason Denison

Harrisburg—Pennsylvania's legislative wizards go into a jackrabbit session today—in a frenzied and belated one-day wind-up of their fitful 1959 session.

As lawmakers leap from their two-week holiday recess to their close-out day of sessioning today, the post session "Legislative Bowl" promises to be anything but serene.

For the benefit of Pennsylvanians who are wondering what their elected representatives are up to, many a lawmaker himself would be delighted to know.

In this one day of jackrabbit sessioning remaining for the dying 1959 session, a host of legislative questions are still hanging fire—and are destined to die tonight as time runs out.

Of this host of legislative gems, three are standouts and of topmost importance, and incidentally all three actually are in position for final action in this one day remaining—should kinglypins in the legislative hierarchy so decree.

One of these revolves around the so-called highway omnibus bill—a legislative monster that is pork-barreling at its best.

In this bill are incorporated all the proposals of lawmakers to have local roads in their respective districts taken over by the state.

Some idea of what this means can be seen from the fact that Pennsylvania's already overburdened 41,000-mile plus state highway system would be burdened even more—to the tune of more than 400 additional miles proposed in the omnibus bill!

A second standout piece of dangling legislation that could be cleared up today—providing politically—at odds House and Senate leaders could agree—concerns the much pushed about and much amended local school subsidy bill.

This ambitious legislative creature originally started out as a $200,000,000 affair embodying increased state aid to local school districts.

After being continuously yanked in and out of the dunking bucket the watered version that finally emerged envisioned a piddling (comparatively) figure of $16,000,000 as proposed by the GOP-controlled Senate—which the Democratic-controlled House huffily declined to back.

If compromise agreement can be reached on this legislation, it could go through today's jackrabbit session finally.

Interestingly, the subsidy bill in its original form was backed solidly by the Pennsylvania State Education Assn. (PSEA)—but after its heavy watering down, PSEA in its annual convention here last week wrathfully withdrew its support of the legislation which now is virtually running around in its gym suit!

The third major nubbly of Import is the question of confirmation by the GOP anti-administration Senate of Democratic gubernatorial appointment to various and sundry state boards and commissions.

Such confirmation now is viewed as unlikely. Among those appointments that could—but will not—be acted upon in today's remaining jackrabbit session are seats on such agencies as the Public Utilities Commission, State Tax Equalization Board, Milk Control Commission and sundry boards.

Inasmuch as appointees cannot take office until confirmed, a death or two or an illness among existing members could raise the question of constitutional functioning of the agencies.

Today's "Legislative Bowl" should be televised!

George Sokolsky Says...

Presidential Campaign

It is sound theory that any citizen of the United States may aspire to be President of the United States. There is no objection to poverty or riches.

Nelson Rockefeller wants to be President of the United States and regards himself as fit for that office. He made a personal survey of the country to discover whether his prospects were favorable or not and finding them not favorable, retired from the fray.

Politics is the science and art of controlling men. The political organizations exist to manage and manipulate the opinions and votes of citizens so that elections are won.

The principles and policies of a political party are not made at conventions but are determined by the elected officials in the Executive and Legislative branches of government.

Party conventions do pass platforms but these are pro forma documents which may or may not influence legislation. Campaign speeches are generally written by professionals and they have, in recent years, degenerated into bland and, at times, meaningless arrays of fluent verbiage with hardly an inspiring sentence.

There can be no criticism of Nelson Rockefeller's ambition to be President. There can be considerable criticism of his assumption that he is by training and career, suitable for this position in the year 1960.

It may be said that his position was thoroughly honest in making a survey to discover how many agreed with his own judgment of his suitability at this time.

So much for Nelson Rockefeller. Now, we need to turn to those Republican politicians who figured that they could do better for themselves supporting Rockefeller than Nixon.

The calculations of a professional politician are never idealistic; were they, he would never be a professional. His task is to get himself into a position where he can control votes, procure jobs and make a living and a career thereby.

The regulars naturally support Richard Nixon for the Republican candidate for President. This has nothing to do with Nixon being Old Guard or Young Guard or any such phraseology.

It has to do with knowing the man over the years, of watching his career and of believing that in a contest with such Democrats as are now in line for the nomination, he stands a very good chance of election.

The professional politicians—and this applies to both parties—is a technician and not a philosopher.

There are always young, aspiring men and women whose ambition it is to enter public life and to be noticed. These men and women may be idealistic and their fervor is often expressed in favor of what they regard as the "different kind of candidate."

Many such political novices favored Nelson Rockefeller because of his name and his personality, but they have not the skill or the devices to popularize a comparatively unknown person.

It is true that the entire country knows the name Rockefeller but it is not true that the particular Rockefeller, Nelson, who aspires to the Presidency is as well known to the American people as his father was.

He had served in the Roosevelt, Truman and Eisenhower Administration but never with the éclat that makes a man a distinguished figure throughout the country. He is now

With Walter Winchell On Broadway

Payola & Co.

Politics is on all-pervasive function almost beyond the belief of the average citizen. There is no branch of our existence that is not influenced by it. Of course, there are many honest and selfless politicians who give their country and community devotion and diligence. Unfortunately, there are—and always have been—politicians who cannot resist dirty money.

Although payola is now associated with the music business, it is as old as politics. As we recently noted, the cost of running a political campaign is a major factor in the problem. As soon as a man runs for office he is obligated to those who provide his essential financial support. When Jefferson ran for President, he paid his own campaign expenses—which amounted to fifty dollars. Running for mayor in a big city today costs several million dollars. As Will Rogers once observed: "Politics has got so expensive that it takes lots of money to even get beat with."

The most infamous payola story was the Teapot Dome scandal. As always, a seemingly innocuous event had momentous consequences. The case had extensive ramifications. It created page one sensations for many years and almost destroyed a political party. The mess implicated Harding's official family and touched the lives of many other Americans.

The lurid and astounding story of official indecency began when several constituents of Senator Kendrick (a Wyoming Democrat) wrote him that a man named Sinclair had started drilling for oil in the Teapot Dome Naval Reserve. Sec'y of Interior Fall had secretly leased the navy oil reserves to Harry Sinclair and Edward L. Doheny, both oil tycoons. How much was the Big Sellout? Doheny "loaned" Sec'y Fall $100,000 and Sinclair gave him a mere $260,000.

The manifold repercussions of the Teapot Dome explosion extended to journalism. It inspired the best and worst in newspapermen. The dramatic saga of reporter Carl Magee has frequently been recorded here. Briefly, Magee uncovered a great deal of damning evidence and was consequently ridiculed, assaulted, sued for libel and railroaded to jail. Friends concerned about his personal safety often urged him to surrender. Magee refused to drop the crusade. He insisted: "This fight isn't going to be any good if I have to worry about what's going to happen to me personally. I'm trying to experiment in truth-telling, and I don't want to spoil it by worrying."

The journalistic villain in the case was a Western publisher who used the evidence he unearthed about Sinclair for blackmail. It has been estimated that he shook down Sinclair for a quarter million dollars. Ironically, the crook was robbed.

The Teapot Dome probe and the consequent court cases dragged on for years. It was confused with the customary counter-claims and side issues. Sec'y Fall was eventually sentenced to one year in jail—seven years after the investigation was inaugurated. What was Sinclair's "punishment"? He was sentenced to serve six months for contempt of the Senate. But there is poetic justice in the fact that these men have been sentenced to everlasting disgrace by the highest tribunal: History.

Incidentally, back in March, 1924, one editorial vigorously denounced the methods and objectives of the Teapot Dome investigators. The editorial contended that "the real purpose of the Senators who profess to be engaged in a laudable effort to uncover corruption in the oil lease scandals is to paralyze the Administration, to terrorize members of the Cabinet, to break down the efficiency of the Government."

The foregoing editorial coos was in the N. Y. Times.

It is axiomatic in politics that party bosses are more interested in local than national elections. For a very good and profitable reason: Local offices provide the patronage which is the lifeblood of the machine. The money involved is immense.

When Boss Tweed was bossing things in New York and raiding the city's treasury—he swiped $75,000,000 in two years. When Tweed was nabbed he arrogantly inquired: "What are you going to do about it?" He beat the rap many times. After a Grand Jury failed to unearth enough evidence to indict Tweed, an editorial said it reminded him of the man who had been discovered dead and the jury was puzzled about the cause of the death. The jury finally issued this report: "Act of God under very suspicious circumstances."

Inside Washington

Geneva, Symbol Of Failure

Washington — As reported in this column more than a month ago, the Western powers avoided Geneva, Switzerland, as the scene of the coming East-West "summit" conference next Spring.

It is difficult to trace the source of the objections to Geneva, but long before the meeting of Western heads of state in Paris, planning officials in Washington were indicating a desire to switch top level meetings from Geneva. This despite the fact that most diplomats who have worked there consider the physical facilities unsurpassed.

To some western diplomats,

Geneva has become a symbol of failure and frustration. The ill-fated 1955 summit meeting was held there, and what started off so well with the results being hailed as the "Geneva spirit," collapsed in failure a few short months later when the foreign ministers were unable to agree on means of implementing the general agreements arrived at by the heads of state.

Geneva was the scene of the negotiated end of the Indo-China war. It was agreed there to partition the country into Viet Nam, and Communist Viet Minh. The United States carried on sporadic negotiations with Red Chinese representatives at Geneva for more than a year in an effort to gain release of five American prisoners of war. Geneva is also the site for atomic test ban negotiations with the Russians—in which no apparent progress has been made in a year of intensive discussions.

What the West proposed to Soviet Premier Nikita Khrushchev was that the summit meeting be held in Paris. Behind this proposal was the implication that there may well be a series of such top-level meetings, and that future conferences can be rotated among the capitals of the big powers—London, Moscow and Washington.

The Allen-Scott Report

Orders Sub Operational

By Robert S. Allen and Paul Scott

Washington — Defense Secretary Thomas Gates is cracking the whip on the Navy and the numerous contractors working on its intermediate range ballistic missile Polaris.

The new Pentagon head has given them a speeded-up target date for the solid-fuel IRBM to be operational — July 1 of this year.

That is shortly before the George Washington, first of the nuclear-powered missile submarines, is to join the fleet. That is now scheduled for September, and Gates is bluntly insisting the Polaris be fully completed and tested by then.

This was the first important edict he laid down when he became Defense Secretary several weeks ago.

The stern directive was personally delivered by the one-time Navy Secretary at a conference in his office of top Navy officials and executives of the major companies working on the Polaris.

being made due to budgetary limitations.

In connection with the association listed education, highways and skyways, urban renewal, slum clearance, low-cost housing and community redevelopment, water supply and conservation, health and hospitals, air pollution.

The major problem of disarmament, the association said, would be in shifts of production from one industry to other industries and from one region to another.

The association describes itself as a nonprofit, nonpolitical organization devoted to planning by Americans in agriculture, business, labor and professions.

While saying there is no need to fear the economic consequences of disarmament, the study stressed that in the meantime the American economy is productive enough to afford national security programs which may be needed to deter a major attack and to prevent local incidents.

An analysis based on an assumption that disarmament could be achieved in the next five years estimated that with no change in present national security programs spending in this field would rise from the current 46 billion dollars to about 50 billion a year.

MONDAY, JANUARY 4, 1960 PAGE FOUR

Just Between Us —

—by Bobby Westbrook

Somehow today seems much more like the start of a new year than January 1. There is the world washed clean of old snow and blown clear of papers and dead leaves.

There are the undecorated houses, looking strangely anti-septic and dull but orderly, with the clutter of Christmas decorations cleared away, and the gifts put to their proper uses. Even more unfamiliar is the quiet with the children back to school and the head of the house back to work.

Only reminders of the gay days just passed are the inordinate number of linen napkins in the laundry; the pine needles which will keep sitting out from the baseboards until Easter, probably; and a general unwillingness to get back into the "routines" of the whole populace.

Seems a good time to clear away some of the news cluttering my memory before getting down to this Monday-of-the-month routine.

Most repeated news of all the open houses during the holidays was the new Wattage to be added by the Watts.

Most spectacular appearance on New Year's Eve was that of Ernie Farmer in the role of 1960, and why he hasn't got pneumonia nobody can figure out.

Longest leotards in bright Christmas red, were worn by Dr. Paul Maxwell. Handsome Christmas mobile at Madelyn and Jack Shinn's. Most sought-after open house guest: George Graff. Handsome candelabra: Joyce and Olaf Pedersen's.

Most satisfactory holidays: me!

Economy Specials For Any Large Gathering To Eat

By Alice Denhoff
Time now for a bit of a brake on the food budget to help get things back to normal after the holiday splurge.

So here are some good economy specials geared for large families or informal company use, beginning with an especially fine vegetable soup and meat ball dinner.

Vegetable Soup
To prepare 3 quarts of soup, simmer 2 lbs. soup bone, 2 whole cloves, 4 tsp. whole black peppers, 3 tsp. salt in 2 qts. cold water for 2 hours.

Add 1/2 c. instant minced onion, 1/2 c. celery flakes, 3 c. canned tomatoes, 2 c. diced fresh carrots, 1 c. shredded raw cabbage, 1 c. lima beans, tsp. sugar and, if desired, 1 to 1 1/2 tsp. chili powder.

Cook until vegetables are tender. In 5 qt. saucepan, combine 1/2 lb. beef shin, 1 lb. whole all-spice, 1/2 tsp. whole black peppers, 3 whole red peppers, 2 1/2 tsp. salt and sufficient cold water to cover. Cover and simmer 3 hrs.

Simple dishes, such as a Hot Pot Soup, always make a big hit at a church supper or other large gathering, so here is the recipe for 6 qts. or about 20 servings.

Simmer Three Hours
In 5 qt. saucepan, combine 1/2 lb. beef shin, 1 lb. whole all-spice, 1/2 tsp. whole black peppers, 3 whole red peppers, 2 1/2 tsp. salt and sufficient cold water to cover. Cover and simmer 3 hrs.

Miss Judith Lee Altemus Millard Philips Married In New Year's Eve Rites

Miss Judith Lee Altemus became the bride of Millard John Philips on New Year's Eve at 7 p.m. at the First Presbyterian Church of Stroudsburg.

She is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Howard E. Altemus, Jr., of 706 Sarah St., Stroudsburg, and the wedding marked the 31st wedding anniversary of her parents and was attended by only the immediate families.

Mr. Philips is the son of Mr. and Mrs. Herman Philips, 703 Scott St., Stroudsburg.

A candlelight setting with a bouquet of gladioli and white pompons on the altar formed the background for the ceremony performed by Rev. John Bollier.

The bride, given in marriage by her father, wore a ballerina-length dress of beige lace with three-quarter sleeves, and a satin bow in back. Her headband was entwined with pearls and beige veiling. She wore matching shoes and a white orchid corsage.

Mrs. Richard Philips, sister-in-law of the bridegroom, of Stroudsburg, was matron of honor. She wore a dress of pink chiffon with a white fur headband, and a corsage of white rosebuds. Richard Philips served as his brother's best man.

The bride's mother wore a dress of green lace with a white feather hat and corsage of white carnations. The bridegroom's mother wore a dress of light blue lace with a corsage of pink carnations.

A reception was held at the home of the bride for about 75 guests.

For their wedding trip through the South, the bride wore a blue jersey dress with pearl accessories and a white orchid corsage.

Miss Compton is a graduate of Stroudsburg High School and the Abington Hospital School of Nursing. She is assistant to Dr. Vernon Lapp in Elkins Park.

Mr. Donahower is an alumnus of William Penn Charter School, Princeton University and Wharton Graduate School. He is connected with the brokerage firm of Kidder, Peabody and Co., Philadelphia.

No date has been set for the wedding.

ORANGE RINDS USEFUL
Grate the rind from oranges to be squeezed for breakfast juice and add it to applesauce for delightful extra flavor.

TRY MAPLE FLAVORING
Some cooks like to add maple flavoring to a confectioners sugar frosting for cake, cookies or sweet rolls.

USE WHITE PEPPER
Keep white pepper (ground) on your spice shelf and use it in light-colored foods where specks of black pepper would mar the appearance of a dish.

REMEMBER THIS
Worth remembering: grease the bottom of the skillet in which you are going to poach eggs and the eggs won't stick.

Friendly Club
Craig's Meadows—The Friendly Club of St. Paul's Lutheran Church will meet Tuesday night at 7:15 at the church.

AAUW To Hear Report Of Incan Civilization From Miss Katherine McFarland

A talk on "Inca Civilization" will be given tonight at 8 at the meeting of the Americas Assn. of University Women at the Stroud Community House by one of their own members, Miss Katherine B. McFarland.

Miss McFarland spent the summer touring in South America by plane, car and train, visiting many of the remote areas off the tourist track and will illustrate her talk with slides.

Miss McFarland, head of the speech department at East Stroudsburg State Teachers College for 12 years, was listed in the first edition of "Who's Who Among Women in America" last year.

She received her BA degree from UCLA and her Masters from USC. She is a certified speech therapist in Pennsylvania and was head of the English Department in Santa Monica, Ca., before coming to East Stroudsburg.

She has directed plays in Santa Monica, California, Illinois and Delaware and has given dramatic readings of novels. At present she heads the Great Books course sponsored by the local AAUW.

Born in Kopper, Texas, she has traveled extensively since her mother died when she was eight. In childhood, she nomaded through the West. Since she has traveled in Eastern Canada, the Scandinavian countries, the British Isles and Western Europe, with her trip to South America last summer the latest of her expeditions.

Miss KATHARINE B. McFARLAND, head of the speech department at ESTC, and listed in "Who's Who Among American Women", who will speak tonight at AAUW.

Howells Host To WSCS Of Tannersville

Tannersville — The Women's Society of Christian Service of the Tannersville Methodist Church met on Monday at the home of Mr. and Mrs. S. B. Howell for their regular meeting with nine members and friends present.

Theme of the worship service was "Christmas is Always" with a program led the spiritual life chairman. Christmas carols were sung with Mrs. Jean Howell giving the history of "Joy to the World," "Hark the Herald Angels Sing" and "Silent Night."

The program also featured a Christmas greeting by Mrs. Roger Shock, a duet by Jean Howell and Sylvia Werkheiser. "There is Room in My Heart for Thee," a meditation, "The Unspeakable Gift of God" by Frances Seecker; and a closing prayer by Mrs. Ruth Howell.

In addition to those mentioned, those present included Melva Raish and Mrs. Clyde Martin. A social with an exchange of gifts followed. Mrs. Howell served refreshments from a Christmas table.

The next meeting will be held at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Horace Raish on January 25 when a film strip of the United Nations will be shown.

BARRETT — Pupils of the Pre-School Center Kindergarten were guests at a Christmas party given by the Barrett Community Club. Each child received a toy as a gift from the club.

The Pre-School Center was established by the Community Club in 1954 with the aim of preparing the pre-school child for a happy and purposeful life.

Since organizing the school, which is state-licensed, and which is held at the Barrett Branch YMCA, the Community Club has contributed over $1,500 toward the support of this project.

Volunteer Service

Its members have also contributed countless hours of volunteer service in handling clerical details in connection with the administration of the center.

After opening the school, the Barrett Community Club was commended by the Pennsylvania Federation of Women's Clubs for its fine work in furthering pre-school education.

Boys Crowned Champions In Ping-Pong

BARRETT — A ping-pong tournament was held at the Barrett Branch YMCA during the holidays for all boys members of the Y.

The tournament was divided into three divisions. The first was run for the junior boys from the ages of 12 to 15. The winner of the singles event in that unit was Jay Shumaker, with Jim Berger coming in second, and Bobby Wilson third.

The second division was a singles tournament for boys from 15 to 18. Theodore Price this event, Larry Wile was second and Mike Shepard came in third.

The third division was the doubles match which was open to everyone. The doubles team of Mike Shepard and Jay Shumaker defeated the team of Fred Albert and Ted Price. Third place was taken by Tom Dunlap and Bobby Wilson.

Cups will be awarded to the winners at the annual Father and Son Banquet to be held at the Barrett YMCA on Saturday night, February 6.

Program Presented

A CHRISTMAS program was presented by the Anahim Methodist Church under the direction of Miss Florence Bates.

Children taking part in the program were: Linda Dietz, Janice Besecker, Virginia Van Why, Linda Cramer, Wilma Hines, Dawson Besecker, Harold Metzgar, Bill Schimmel, Gary Smith, Martha Nauman, Cindy Cramer, Claudia Besecker, Barbara Besecker, Marie Bush, Beverly Beehler, Harriet Smith, Mary Ann Smith, Corliss Penzile, Susan Miller, Peggy and Linda Metzgar, Patsy Hilgert and Donna and Kathy Bush.

Small Business Tax Facts No. 2

Additional Depreciation Deducted

(This is one in a series of articles on small business tax problems. These articles are based on information provided by the American Institute of Certified Public Accountants and the Pennsylvania Institute of Certified Public Accountants.)

THE PURCHASE of equipment can be a drain on any business, but particularly on the smaller businesses. It is for this reason that one of the amendments to the tax law in 1958 was aimed at easing the problem to some extent by allowing an additional deduction for depreciation in the year equipment is acquired.

To see what a difference this new allowance can make, assume that last year you bought a new machine for $10,000 with a useful life to you of twelve years. Prior to the amendment, the maximum amount of depreciation you could deduct in the first year was $1,667. But, by taking advantage of the new allowance you could get a maximum first year deduction of $3,333.

To take advantage of the additional first year depreciation allowance, the property being depreciated can be new or old, but it must be "tangible personal property." This includes machinery, fixtures, equipment, and other personal property used in your trade or business, but it excludes improvements to your buildings or real estate. There are also some special rules that apply if the property is purchased from a relative, or if it is purchased by a corporation from a stockholder or by a partnership from a partner. You should check into this if it seems to apply to equipment you acquire for your business.

You can take the additional first year allowance on up to $10,000 worth of property purchased during the year. In the case of an individual taxpayer filing a joint return, the limit is $20,000. In a partnership, the limit is applied to each partner. Let's assume that you purchased $20,000 worth of equipment during the year. On your tax return for the year, you would have to designate the $10,000 worth of purchases to which you wish to apply the additional first year allowance.

The equipment selected must have a useful life to you of six years or more. Your determination of the useful life is very important. Treasury Department Bulletin F (available from the U.S. Government Printing Office) lists a great many items of business equipment and the useful life of each. However, the useful life referred to in the bulletin is the economic or useful life span of the equipment. If you expect to give more or less than usual use to a piece of equipment, you must give consideration to this fact in determining a reasonable expectation of the equipment's useful life to you.

How Is The Allowance Figured? If the property you have purchased meets the requirements mentioned, your additional first year depreciation allowance would be 20 percent. This allowance would be in addition to the deduction you are allowed under any acceptable method you may choose for handling depreciation.

It is immaterial when during the year the property was acquired. So long as you are entitled to a depreciation deduction in the year of purchase, you are entitled to the full 20 percent additional deduction. However, it may be taken only in the first year in which you are allowed a depreciation deduction with respect to the property.

Replacement Equipment It is the amount you pay for equipment that serves as a basis for the additional first year allowance. For example, a new machine costs $3,000. You manage to get the machine for $2,500 by trading in an old one. In this situation, only the $2,500 counts as a basis for your first year depreciation allowance. However, in computing your regular depreciation you would include in your cost the amount represented by your trade-in property.

For example, let's say that the old machine had a value on your books of $1,100. In computing the additional first year depreciation, the portion of the cost of the new machine represented by the trade-in is ignored and you could deduct as first year depreciation 20 percent of $2,500 or $500. However, in computing your regular depreciation deduction, the trade-in counts, and as is the case with trade-ins, at its unrecovered cost not the amount allowed. Thus, you paid $2,500, less $500 first year depreciation equals $2,000 plus the trade-in cost to you of $1,100 equals $3,100, which is the amount to be used in computing depreciation under whatever method you may be using.

Amount You Can Deduct Some methods of depreciation require that you subtract salvage value (your estimate of the amount you can get for the property after you are finished using it) from the cost of the property before figuring your depreciation deduction. However, salvage value does not have to be considered in computing your additional first year allowance. It is as though the additional allowance were taken right off the top. Let's see how this works with two of the more common methods of computing depreciation. For example, if you purchase a piece of equipment for $10,000 with a useful life to you of twelve years, your first year additional allowance would be $2,000 (20 percent of $10,000). Your cost would be reduced by the $2,000, and your regular method of depreciation would be figured on the balance of $8,000.

With the straight-line method, you first subtract the estimated salvage value, let's say $500, leaving you with a depreciable balance of $7,500. You spread this amount equally over the useful life of the equipment, which would be $625 each year (this can be stated as a percentage, 8 and one-third percent a year for twelve years). The additional allowance together with straight-line depreciation, means a deduction in the first year of $2,625.

Suppose that you use the declining-balance method of depreciation. With this method, salvage value is not subtracted from the cost. Your depreciation deduction will be a fixed percentage of the unrecovered cost each year. The percentage may not be more than twice the straight-line rate, or in this case, 16 and two-thirds percent. On the balance of $8,000 then, your first year deduction with the declining balance method would be $1,333. Adding this to the additional allowance of $2,000, you get a total first year depreciation deduction of $3,333.

How Much Depreciation To Take As you can see, by selecting one or another method of depreciation and by electing to use or not use the additional first year allowance, you have wide latitude in determining how your depreciation deductions will be spread over the useful life of your equipment. Each deduction will reduce your taxable profits in the year it is taken. It is up to you to decide, in light of present and future estimates of your operation, whether it would be better to have larger deductions in the earlier years or to have deductions spread more evenly.

Four Killed Castro stood under a mango tree and directed the capture of the invaders. Two of his men and two of the plane's contingent were killed in a clash at the airport. It is understood the prosecuting attorney will ask the five-man military tribunal to impose the death penalty for occupants of the plane and sentences of from 20 to 30 years for the other accused.

The government accusation says among those aboard the plane were Luis Pozo, son of a former mayor of Havana; Roberto Martin Perez, son of a high-ranking officer in the regime of Fulgencio Batista, and Col. Antonio Soto, the pilot. Soto was wounded in the clash.

Among civilians linked to the plot and captured in Havana were Armando Hernandez Tellacheche, a former senator, Castro has said. Hernandez Tellacheche would have been designated president if the conspiracy succeeded.

So far as is known, all 190 will be tried at the same time at La Cabana military fortress, across the bay from Havana. The prisoners were reported being brought to Havana from prison on the Isle of Pines, off the south coast.

Former Senator Verdon Frailley, of this place, Joan Sprague, Arlene Kauffman, John Frailley, Wayne Bond and Danny Mager have returned home after spending three days in Washington, D.C., where they attended the Youth for Christ convention.

Mr. and Mrs. Rudy Harvatin, of Forest City, spent several days with Mr. and Mrs. Richard Metzgar.

Mrs. Harold Sprague celebrated her birthday on Jan. 2. Ray Joseph Starnes, son of Mr. and Mrs. Kenneth Starnes, celebrates his 12th birthday on Jan. 4.

Roger Smith, of the U.S. Navy, spent several weeks here with his wife and family at the home of Mrs. Smith's parents, Mr. and Mrs. Claude Bunting. He returns to sea duty Jan. 4.

Mad Killer On Loose In England

BIRMINGHAM, England (AP)—British police Sunday called on Interpol, the international police organization, to help them track down the killer who hacked off a woman's head in a Birmingham YMCA hostel. The slayer has evaded a massive police net.

She was the first of three young women to die violently in little more than a week.

Friday the body of Pauline Blaney, 18, a pretty factory worker, was found in an apartment only two miles from the murder hostel. She had been beaten, strangled and raped.

In Birmingham Saturday night police charged a mid-looking factory foreman, Charles James Goodby, 47, with killing the girl. Goodby gave himself up to a policeman in London.

May Not Be Connected Police said there were indications that Pauline Blaney's death was not connected with the killing of Miss Baird.

The third woman to die was Ruby May Carter, found battered to death Saturday in her cottage home in Cowbridge, Wales. She, too, came from Birmingham.

In one of the biggest manhunts in British criminal history, police have vainly sought a curly haired young man about 5 feet 7, seen leaving the hostel where Miss Baird was slain.

Birmingham detectives, through Scotland Yard, asked the help of Interpol, which has headquarters in Paris. They want to find out whether there is any record of similar killings on the Continent.

Wilde's Last Manuscript Made Public

LONDON (AP)—The manuscript of Oscar Wilde's last work, written when he was in prison, has been opened to the public by the British Museum trustees after 50 years.

But it was something of an anticlimax, for the contents were one of the worst-kept literary secrets in centuries.

Part was published as "De Profundis" in 1905, five years after Wilde's death in his self-imposed exile in France. "De Profundis" was an apology, couched in terms of remorse, for Wilde's life.

Wilde's literary executor, Robert Ross, presented the manuscript to the British Museum in 1909 on condition it should remain unopened for 50 years.

To Douglas The first of the manuscript's secrets was revealed in 1912. This was the name of the friend to whom it was addressed—Lord Alfred Douglas. It was Wilde's homosexual association with Douglas that brought him two years in Reading Jail, eventual bankruptcy and self-imposed exile.

Arthur Ransome, engaged on a literary study of Wilde at the time, learned the facts from Ross. In his book on Wilde, Ransome without mentioning Douglas by name, said the manuscript was addressed "to a man to whom Wilde felt that he owed some, at least, of the circumstances of his public disgrace."

Lord Alfred promptly sued for libel. The manuscript was brought into court from the British Museum strong room and a jury found for Ransome and dismissed the case.

Douglas died in 1945. Four years later, a year before the copyright expired, Wilde's only surviving son, Vyvyan Holland, published the entire text of the manuscript.

190 Cubans Go On Trial Today For Conspiring Against Castro

HAVANA (AP)—A military tribunal puts on trial Monday 190 Cubans accused of complicity in what the Cuban government claims is one of the biggest conspiracies against Prime Minister Fidel Castro's regime.

The defendants are charged with involvement in a plot last August said by Castro to have originated in the Dominican Republic with the blessings of his arch-enemy, Generalissimo Rafael Trujillo.

A key witness for the government is a former U.S. soldier, William Morgan of Toledo, Ohio, now a major in the Cuban armed forces.

Morgan said he posed as one of the conspirators to lure a plane loaded with arms and armed invaders into a trap at Trinidad, on Cuba's south-central coast.

Four Killed Castro stood under a mango tree and directed the capture of the invaders. Two of his men and two of the plane's contingent were killed in a clash at the airport. It is understood the prosecuting attorney will ask the five-man military tribunal to impose the death penalty for occupants of the plane and sentences of from 20 to 30 years for the other accused.

NEW YEAR'S RESOLUTIONS

Fish Code Amended By Legislature

JAMES F. HAZEN, of Mount Pocono, district fish warden, yesterday announced the new fish regulations approved by the Legislature.

He said the Dec. 15 completion of legislative action on the new fish code did not allow sufficient time for the availability of the 1966 summary booklet by Jan. 1. However, he reported, the booklet is expected to be in the hands of issuing agents by Jan. 15.

Major changes in the inland water regulations effective Jan. 1 were listed by the Pennsylvania Fish Commission as follows:

Bass Regulations
Large mouth and small mouth bass—season Jan. 1 to mid-night March 14, and June 15 to midnight March 14, 1961. Minimum size, nine inches. Daily creel limit, six combined species. Last year there was no size limit.

Pickering—season same as bass. Minimum size is 15 inches. Daily creel limit, six. (Whether fishing through holes in the ice or in open water). Formerly the pickering minimum size was 12 inches.

Wall eye—season same as bass. Minimum size is 15 inches. Daily creel limit six. (Two wall eyes only through the ice). Size limit changed from 12 to 15 inches.

Muskellunge—season same as bass. Minimum size is 30 inches. Daily creel limit, two. The new regulation changes the former open season.

Remove Open Season
Northern pike—season same as bass. Minimum size is 20 inches. Daily creel limit, six. The new regulation closes the former open season.

Pan fish—(sun fish, blue gills, yellow perch, crappies, rock bass and cat fish) season open year round. Minimum size—none. Daily creel limit, 25 each species, 50 in combination. The change places a creel limit on pan fish.

Legal devices—no more than five tip-ups or other legal devices can be used when fishing through holes in the ice for any species not protected by closed season.

Receipts for the purchase of bait fish and fish bait from licensed commercial hatchery dealers will be valid for a period of seven days only.

Minor's Capital Gains

By William A. Doyle
Q. My young son owns 33 shares of Tri-Continental stock. The shares are registered in my name, as custodian, for (then his name), a minor.
A. When Tri-Continental sends out its annual form stating how much capital gains the 33 shares entitled my son to and the amount of capital-gains tax paid by the company on that capital gains, will I be able to file an income tax form for him and get back the taxes paid by the company? Will I still be able to claim my son as a dependent on my own income tax form?

A. The answer to both questions is yes, according to the Internal Revenue Service, with certain qualifications. If your son had a gross income for the year of less than $600, he is not required to pay any income tax. Under those circumstances, you would naturally want to file an income tax return for him.

And, if he qualifies as a dependent, you can claim him as such on your own return. Assuming that you provide the support for the boy and that he is either 18 or younger or is a full-time student for more than five months of the year, you should have no problem there — even if his gross income tops $600 a year. There are other tests in qualifying as a dependent. But these should be enough for you.

Tri-Continental is one of the investment companies which does not distribute its capital gains. Instead, the company pays to the U.S. Treasury Department 25 percent of the capital gains it realizes each year.

The payment to the Treasury Department is actually made for the account of each and every one of the Tri-Continental stockholders. Then the company sends each stockholder certain qualifications. If your son had a gross income for the year of less than $600, he is not required to pay any income tax. Under those circumstances, you would naturally want to file an income tax return for him.

turn to recover any taxes paid on his behalf. If the holder a form, stating the amount of capital gains he was entitled to and the amount of capital-gains tax paid on his behalf. He is supposed to report the capital gains on his income tax form. And he takes credit for the capital-gains tax paid on his behalf. Taxwise, it has this result.

If the Tri-Continental stockholder is in a tax bracket where his effective capital-gains tax is less than 25 percent, in effect, he receives a refund. His tax bill is reduced by the tax credit he receives.

Then the shareholder is entitled to "write up" the "tax cost basis" of each of his shares by the amount of capital gains actually retained by the company.

In other words, say you bought a share of an investment company using the method for $40. The company realizes capital gains of $1 a share.

The company pays, for your account, 25 cents in capital-gains tax and actually retains 75 cents. Your tax cost basis of your share becomes $40.75.

If you sell the share at some later date, your profit or loss will be figured on a cost of $40.75 a share.

Complicated? It is, sort of. But it is a method by which investment companies can retain their capital gains. Otherwise, to qualify as investment companies for tax purposes, they would have to distribute their realized capital gains, either in cash or additional shares.

East Germany Buys Liner

GOTEBORG, Sweden (AP) — The East German flag was hoisted Sunday on the 12,396-ton Atlantic liner Stockholm. The ship, which used to sail between Goteborg and New York, has been sold by the Swedish-American Line to East Germany for about four million dollars.

Twelve Words that Open a New World

One sentence, in a book read today probably more often than any other except the Bible, has opened the door to an entirely new outlook on religion in daily life: "Divine Love always has met and always will meet every human need."

This sentence is found in the Christian Science textbook

SCIENCE AND HEALTH
with Key to the Scriptures
by Mary Baker Eddy

Through this book the healing power of the Bible promises has been made practical and provable. Christian Science has restored Christian healing to the modern world.

You may read, borrow or purchase Science and Health at any Christian Science Reading Room, or send $3 and a copy will be mailed postpaid.
